'BLANC' CANVASES

"We have a new wine called Blanc that went on sale. I painted the label and wanted to try it out on a canvas," said artist Mary Ellen Molloy.

"I really enjoyed the painting process and thought it was fun to try something new. I'm not sure if I'll make more of them, but I'm happy with how it turned out."

Molloy has been painting in her bedroom for the past few years and decided to try her hand at a new medium. She used acrylic paints and canvas to create this piece. She is also planning to create more art in the future.

"I think it's important to try new things and challenge yourself. It's always fun to see what you can create."